

In its ongoing mission to enhance hiring options for growing companies, Workable is teaming up with Portfolium, an exciting platform for employers to find talented graduates. The partnership will put on-campus recruiting, previously the domain of large organizations, within reach of ambitious companies everywhere, regardless of their size.

The combination of Portfolium's next generation e-portfolios and Workable's mobile-friendly hiring software will enable all employers to compete for college talent with proven skills.

"Hooking up to Portfolium enables Workable customers to tap their extensive network of students and recent graduates," said Thanos Markoussis, Workable's VP of Operations. "The talent on Portfolium will now be able to apply directly for jobs posted by Workable customers."

"We're thrilled to partner with Workable to help deliver a campus recruiting solution where recruiters can match job requirements to students' verified competencies, instead of just relying on keywords in their resumes," said Jim Milton, Portfolium's VP of Customer Development.

From posting jobs to tracking candidates and running background checks, Workable is widely hailed as the first Applicant Tracking System (ATS) that teams actually enjoy using. More than 500 businesses are joining every month, many of them using hiring software for the first time.

Here's what some of them are saying:

"Takes the headache out of hiring: Workable seems to be ahead of the pack right now. In particular, tight Gmail integration makes my hiring process seamless."

"Loving Workable: I am absolutely over the moon with Workable. Great flow on the process, as well as awesome customer service. It has totally changed the way we process new applicants."

“Rockstar support: Hands down, post-sale service differentiates this product from competitors.”
